DESCRIPTION:

The two three-story rowhouses at 950-952 Harlem Avenue are located on the north side of the street at the intersection of a small, unnamed alley. The three-bay facades and the west elevation of 952 are covered with Formstone. The raised basement has two windows which are boarded, as are all other openings. The upper story window openings are tall and narrow and the doorway is slightly arched. Stone sills remain at the windows. The bracketed cornice has been removed, but was probably identical to that at 948 Harlem. The roof is flat.

SIGNIFICANCE:

AREA: Architecture LEVEL: Local

The two houses at 950-952 Harlem Avenue are contributing structures in the Lafayette Square potential historic district which was determined eligible in 1983. The significance of the district centers on the high level of architectural style in the buildings bordering the Square and on the unbroken rows of traditional rowhouses in the streets surrounding the Square. The 900 block of Harlem Avenue was cited specifically as an example of an eclectic blend of architectural features including projecting brickwork and terra cotta ornamentation.
